

Mysteries of the Marshes

📍 5 stages | 📏 6 mi (9.5 km) | 🚲 Ride Steady

With a wealth of interesting buildings Eastoft is the centre of a vast area, mostly claimed from marsh and fen from the early 1600s onwards. The village formed the boundary between Lincolnshire and the West Riding of Yorkshire, bisected by the River Don and with a high street on each of its banks. When Dutch engineer Vermuyden came to drain the area, he diverted many rivers, including the old River Don. The old river course has now been filled in and partly built on, leaving the interesting sight of a line of buildings with a road running down each side.

Highlights

Crowle Stone

Crowle Stone was originally part of the shaft of a stone cross. It now stands in the nave of the church but, for many years was re-used as a lintel over the tower door. The Norman church of St Oswald is unusual in that it has separate roofs for the nave and chancel.

Historic Inns

The 17th century White Hart pub in Crowle still has evidence of timber framing and is a great place to meet the locals for a pint.

Rider Information

This ride can easily be done in conjunction with 'In Search of the Don'. However, both present parking issues if arriving by car.

Road surface is constructed of tarmac and is in a reasonable state of repair. These are quiet country roads and are not that well maintained. Take care as there are numerous potholes to catch out the unsuspecting.

Suitable for all types of bike.

The grades for cycle rides

Ride easy, ride steady, ride well and ride strong have been developed by British Cycling to help cyclists to decide whether a particular route is appropriate for their ability.
